

We just can't take our fingers off motors and fans:

We share a very special profile...

... and now even the same name.

Laboratory tests have revealed the real driving force behind our constant drive for new and improved motors and fans: our 7,000 dedicated staff members, working in R&D, think-tanks and production units throughout the world! Overpowered by their own inner urge, they are the creators of the rather special profile that ebm, PAPST, and mvl are famous for in their industries and markets. So far, they have committed more than 14,000 acts of willful ventilation and have come up with innumerable drive solutions. Energetically enthusiastic to leave their mark on engineering history, they have satisfied our customers by coming up with new and innovative applications. And now, to top it all, they have banded together to think, work and design under a joint name: ebm-papst.
